

OVERVIEW

Our project explores how national happiness relates to both economic performance and social factors. We will examine whether the positive relationship shown in this graph holds true across different variables. We aim to provide a deeper understanding of how economic and social dimensions jointly shape global well-being

